Take a Closer Look...

Take a seat on the quad and watch the people around you. These are the people who make up Jacksonville State University. Athletes, Greeks, independents, faculty, international students, traditional and non-traditional, artists, and leaders: each person adds a part to make a diversified campus. JSU has more than 8,000 students from all walks of life, and each student has a story to be told. Take a closer look into the life of JSU.

What does it mean to be a Gamecock?

The dictionary may define Gamecock as a rooster trained for fighting, but JSU students see the word defined in other ways. Being a Gamecock brings a sense of pride and symbolizes what JSU means to them.

"It means to have pride, school spirit, and wonderful memories of a lifetime."

-Olivia Rogers

Sophomore, Elementary Education

"Attending JSU has allowed me to meet new people and develop many lasting friendships that I deeply cherish."

-Tony Jeffers

*Graduate Student
History Education*

"Pride and tradition...to quote Stephen Holmes, 'Dead God, if I have one day left to live, let me live it as a Gamecock'."

-Deidra Tidwell

Graduate Student Counselor Education

"Being a Gamecock has provided me with great opportunities."

-Amanda Davis

Junior Elementary Education

"It is a sense of pride, joy, and belonging to the Friendliest Campus in the South."

-Nakendeia Henderson

Senior, Criminal Justice

JSU Remembers 9/11/01

JSU had many services to honor the victims of 9/11. JSU faculty and students held a Prayer and Remembrance service in front of Bibb Graves. The BCM also held a candlelight service the night of 9/11. The SGA held the H.O.N.O.R. campaign to raise money for the American Red Cross. Among the 9/11 victims remembered was Major Dewayne Williams, son of Pearl Williams, coordinator of part-time employment and career planning at JSU.

Campus Life

One of the best things about Jacksonville State University is the student body. The students help make JSU the “Friendliest Campus in the South.”

“Being a part of the Marching Southerners is great because it is not just a football thing, but a year round group of people that provides you with a lot of friends.”

The SGA held a spring concert in April featuring the country music group Rascal Flatts. Although some students complained about having a country band perform, Rascal Flatts changed many minds before and during the show. The week before Rascal Flatts came to JSU, their CD, featuring hits such as “Prayin’ for Daylight” and “Everyday Love,” went platinum. Rascal Flatts was a definite hit at JSU.

Cabaret

The JSU Drama department presented CABARET in the spring. CABARET was performed at the Ernest Stone Performing Arts Center. CABARET is based on the play by John Van Druten and stories by Christopher Isherwood.

The audience got a closer look at the Kit Kat Club's famous scantily clad dancers.

The Master of Ceremonies served as one of the key characters in the play, along with novelist Cliff Bradshaw and dancer Sally Bowles.

RECKLESS

Reckless, the second presentation of Jacksonville State University Drama Department's 2001 season, was performed from October 18-22, 2001 at the Ernest Stone Performing Arts Center. Reckless, a comedy written by Craig Lucas, was chosen for its off beat humor and contrast to some of the plays that were performed later in the season, according to director Susan McCain.

The plot centered around a young wife, played by JSU student Tanya Poore, whose husband, JSU student Joe Fuselli, informed her that he had taken out a contract on her life. The play then followed her through a series of situations, events and characters.

Cast members included: Clint LeRoy, Jeff Klevorn, Brian Boozer, Jameel Lewis, Tanya Poore, Cameo Singleton, Christian Fernandez, Becky Johnson, Joe Fuselli, and Heather Parks.

Juried Exhibition of Art Works

Jacksonville State University's Art Department presented a juried exhibition of art works in February at the Hammond Hall Gallery. All works were produced in a JSU art class or as an assigned project from a JSU art instructor.

Above: Best of Show went to "Exaggerated Ego" by Jason Jones.

JSU Ceramics Show

Jacksonville State University hosted a Ceramics Art display during the "Alabama Clay Conference 17 Invitational Exhibition." The exhibition took place in the Hammond Hall Gallery in March. The exhibition was curated by Steve Loucks, Associate Professor of Art at JSU. Artists showed a broad range of issues and expressions common in contemporary ceramics. Issues varied from utilitarian pottery to non-representational sculpture.

Parking Problems

One of the most discussed issues on campus during the 2001-2002 school year was the problem faculty and students were facing trying to find a place to park. The SGA parking committee and the faculty senate met together many times during the year to look for a solution that would benefit everyone. Some ideas included: building new parking spaces, parking by the classification, new color codes for student parking, changing present parking regulations, and even changing the amount of time between classes.

Areas complained about most by students included the lots outside of Daugette Hall and Sparkman Hall.

One temporary solution the Student Government Association came up with was "Walk to Class Wednesdays." This encouraged many students to bring out their bikes and walking shoes, and it did make a dent in the parking problem.

Casino Night

Casino Night was held on March 7, 2002. The event was sponsored by the Student Government Association.

International House

JSU's International House is more than just a house. It is a collection of 40 students from all over the world. Each year, twenty American students and twenty international students are chosen to live for one school year at the house. These students present programs throughout the year to various Rotary and Pilot Clubs in Calhoun County. The program began in the 1940s and has meant a lot to the University since then.

These three students were residents of the International House during the 2001-2002 school year.

Last year, every Wednesday night at 9:00 p.m., the students gathered for a meeting, to learn things about each other's homes by presenting skits and plays about each country.

Phi Eta Sigma

The 2002 Phi Eta Sigma Induction took place on April 3, 2002, at Leone Cole Auditorium. Ninety-one JSU students were inducted into the oldest and largest freshman honor society, which was founded at the University of Illinois in 1923 and now has over 700,000 members nationwide.

Membership is open to all freshmen with a 3.5 or higher GPA. Phi Eta Sigma is a national honor society whose goal is to encourage and reward academic excellence among freshmen in institutions of higher learning.

Thursday Nights

In almost all college towns, Thursday nights are infamous. Jacksonville, Alabama is no different. In a town where many students go home for the weekend, the only night left to go out with their friends is Thursday night. Why Thursday? The answer to that may be obvious- it's the night closest to the weekend, so it's a good time to relieve the stress of the week. Then again maybe it's just because it always been the night the best parties were thrown around Jacksonville. No one knows who started the tradition, but everyone is glad to have the time to enjoy with their friends.

Academics at JSU . . .

The faculty at Jacksonville State University is dedicated to improving the minds of the students. People from around the world come to JSU for the outstanding academics and the school's reputation of being "The Friendliest Campus in the South," which applies to students and teachers both. The faculty is very friendly and the professors are willing to help students any way they can. Since the classes are small, professors are able to interact with their students and give them more hands-on experience in the classroom. When students leave JSU, they carry memories with them that will last a lifetime.

Q & A

Why did you chose to work at Jacksonville State University?

Debra Carmack

"My allegiance to JSU is two-fold. As an employee, I learn each day as I work with students, faculty, and administrators. In 1993, I earned a bachelor's degree from JSU which has opened many doors. For me, there is no other place to be!"

Dr. Chris Westley

"I came to JSU to do my part to save the world by increasing the level of economic knowledge!"

Faye Larue Gamble

"My reason for seeking employment at JSU was for its reputation for having a very good work environment, good salary, benefits, and an opportunity to return to school and job advancement. I appreciate the opportunity I have had to work at JSU over the years, and I hope to remain here until I retire."

In Loving Memory of

Dr. Rayford Boles Taylor

A Tribute to Dr. Rayford Taylor by Steven Turner

Dr. Rayford Boles Taylor. Everyone knew him as Dr. Taylor or Rayford. I, along with few others, knew him as Doc. There have been so many questions asked about his life that I could not begin to answer all of them. This is my account of one of the best friends I will ever have. For those of you who knew him, you will laugh or cry. Most of all, you will smile at the thought of him and his colorful character.

We met through the Kappa Sigma Fraternity. My fraternity brothers Todd Campbell and Hunter Youngblood worked for Doc a total of four and one-half years. When Hunter moved to Birmingham after graduation, I began my work for Doc. It was a year of great change in my life personally. Doc was just outside the center of it all. After tracing our lineage, we discovered that we were related through bloodlines stretching to Hollis Crossroads in Cleburne County.

My work for Doc included cleaning the house, except the bathroom. Doc told me I did not have to do anything I didn't want to do. I wanted to clean the bathroom and he told me no. That was our first parallel. I would never let anyone clean my personal indoor outhouse. I also cut the grass and maintained the yard; I bought groceries because he suffered from panic disorder and could not tolerate crowds. I drove him to Dr. Corley in Gadsden and Dr. Patterson in Birmingham. He could not drive great distances of over twenty miles. I did most of his personal errands. He wanted me to know his personal business in case he ever got sick. He wanted those people to know and trust me. That was the extent of my work.

Seventy percent of my time with Doc was spent with Doc was side by side. I never got my work done because I spent most of my time talking and listening to him. I listened ninety percent of the time. He had a lot to talk about. He was a History professor. He was a genius. Let me share insight into how smart Doc was. He never made a B. He had all A's throughout high school and college. He attended Birmingham Southern, the University of Virginia, and the University of Georgia for his Ph.D. Listen to me; I attended Darlington School, a boarding school in Rome, GA. I knew that it took the blood of family from the Civil War to get into UVA. This man was from a fine heritage and he was a genius. He was Phi Beta Kappa among other prestigious honor societies. So I listened and listened with intent. But he listened to me also. He once called me the yard boy to the gasman. When the man left, I turned to Doc and said, "Doc, if you ever call me anything like that again I will not come back. I am an aristocrat. You can call me your associate or friend." He chuckled and said, "Oh, I'm sorry, I am an aristocrat too. Thank you for telling me. Now I definitely know that you are underpaid." That was the beginning of our closeness. We became intimate friends. He told me his secrets. I told him mine. I was definitely not a "yard-boy". He told me I was all he had. He had no close family. He had never been married. He had been in love before.

I could run down the list of people I might know everything about. To their surprise, they would have no clue I knew everything about them. But Doc loved his friends. He wanted to share them with me. There are Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Wingo and Dr. Pete Robinson among many other great colleagues and friends in the History Department. Take into account Doc had worked at JSU for forty years. Lisa Green was one of his favorites. He brought her an orange sherbet everyday during lunch from Cecil's. There was Audrey over in Bibb Graves. Doc adored her. She and her husband took care of Doc for a few years too. There were the Sukos and there was Mrs. Daisy Smith. Doc ate at her house, Ten Oaks, for holiday supper. She reminded him of his youth. They had great fun at their extravagant dinners. There were countless others I fail to mention.

Doc shared his home with me during the summer and fall of 2001. I did not want to live in Jacksonville due to a change in my life. Doc did not want me to live in Rome and commute. He wanted me to live with him and keep him company. The greatest thing that Doc and I shared was not the history lessons or the tall tales. It was the fact that both of us shared our faith together. I was a new believer. Doc and I shared many of the same bad habits. But as God continued to change my heart, Doc held me accountable to my actions. Doc's habits changed along with mine. We shared in the joy of God's grace. Then he told me something that sealed our friendship. He told me I was the only man he had ever loved. We cried a little during the hard times. But that is what friends do. They share the hard times as well as the good. I can not count the many laughs we shared. He had more stories about fun times throughout life. I often wondered if the little boy inside was ever going to pull a fast one over on me. He would definitely tell you exactly what he thought on various issues. He was a conservative to say the least.

Doc said this Christmas was the best ever. He missed his mama and daddy and their presence during this time of year. This year he was overwhelmed with cards, gifts and invitations for Christmas supper or New Years fun. He was all smiles when I gave him his four gifts. He played the Neil Young CD he asked me to buy him. He said the song "Old Man" reminded him of our relationship. He then gave me a new wallet, which I tried to refuse. He insisted I have it. It was just like his. He gave me extra money for the trip I was preparing to leave for the next day. He had begged me to spend the night but I had already spent the entire afternoon with him. I needed to pack. We told each other I love you and parted for the evening. He called twice that night but I was busy at Wal-Mart. I dared not call him the next morning. He was a late sleeper and his only phone was in the kitchen. It was a rotary phone and he would stand up for hours to talk to you. Our last "goodbye, I love you" was the last "goodbye, I love you."

Doc loved to teach. He love the students. He prepared himself at the finest institutions so that he could share his passion for history and learning. Doc could have taught at the finest of institutions such as Georgia. He instead chose home and Jacksonville State University. He could have retired early, but he would have been miserable and lonely. He loved the students. That was his purpose in life. Education meant freedom and hope for the weak and impoverished. Doc wanted to share with his students and push them to learn and succeed.

I talked with Calvin Wingo as he was walking to his car during a visit. I told him how much Doc love and appreciated him. He and Dr. Wingo shared the same desires in their roles as teachers. Dr. Wingo tearfully uttered, "it was all about the students." When his body ached, it was his love and passion for students that carried Doc to work everyday. He loved you, students. He gave you everything that he had. As men, we share similar passions about life and faith. He was a teacher, mentor, boss, father figure and best friend. Doc was a man that made his mark on myself and countless others. I loved him. As we remember him, let us emulate the dedication he brought to the classroom to our own lives. Let us live with purpose, character, and integrity. "Let us run with endurance the race that is set out before us" Hebrews 12:1. Doc would not have it any other way.

Employee of the Year

Cathy Nabors worked as secretary in the Office of Special Services. Cathy came to Jacksonville State University June 1, 1977 and retired January 31, 2002. She was employed at JSU for twenty-five years. Cathy is married, has two daughters, and lives in Alexandria. She attended Alexandria High School. After graduating, Cathy attended Gadsden Business College. When Cathy first came to JSU, her Special Services supervisor was J.E. Fain and her office was on the fourth floor of the TMB. Cathy was selected Employee of the Month of December.

The Employee of the Month/Year Program was established in 1900 in order to recognize outstanding employees. The program honors one employee each month and at the end of the year an Employee of the Year is chosen from among those employees. Nominations are accepted from all faculty and staff members. An appointed Staff Advisory Council has the responsibility for reviewing nominations and selecting the Employee of the Month.

Cathy Nabors

Outstanding Teacher Award

Dr. Mark Meade has a Ph.D., M.S., and B.S. in Biology. Dr. Meade received these degrees at the University of Alabama at Birmingham. He is currently the Assistant Professor and Visiting Assistant Professor at Jacksonville State University. Dr. Meade has published eight manuscripts. He also has more than thirty-seven published abstracts. He has received several Grants, such as the CCCF Stringfellow Award and JSU Faculty Grants. Dr. Meade received JSU Outstanding Teacher of the Year in May 2001.

The Earlon and Betty McWhorter Award for Outstanding Teacher was established in 1993. It is a University sponsored, faculty administered program designed to honor an outstanding faculty member for his or her efforts in teaching. The person selected for this honor receives an honorarium of $500, a budget of $500 for expenses, and a framed certificate that recognizes this accomplishment. All full time faculty members are eligible. Nominations are encouraged by self, students, colleagues, or department heads.

Dr Mark Meade

Faculty Scholar Lecture Award

Dr. Russel Lemmons has a Ph.D. and M.A. in History from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. He also received a B.A. in History from Franklin College, Franklin, Indiana. He is currently the Associate Professor of History at Jacksonville State University. Dr. Lemmons has also been the Assistant Professor of History at JSU. He has many publications, including two books, nine articles, and over twenty reviews. He has also made eighteen public presentations. Dr. Lemmons is currently on the Graduate Council and Library Council. He has also been on the Holocaust Commemoration Committee and President's Focus Groups.

The Faculty Scholar Lecture Award was established in the Spring of 1998. It is a University sponsored, faculty administered program designed to honor an outstanding faculty member for research, publication, or other original work in his or her field. The person selected for this honor will deliver a lecture, or an appropriate presentation, to the University community. The award carries an honorarium of $500 and a budget of $500 for expenses. All full-time faculty members are eligible. Nominations are encouraged by self, students, colleagues, or department heads.

Dr. Russel Lemmon

Outstanding Community Education/Service Award

Dr. Steven Whitton has a Ph.D. and M.A. in English, and B.A. in English Education. He received these degrees from the University of South Carolina. Dr. Whitton has been the Professor of English and Associate Professor of English at Jacksonville State University. He is the co-author of a novel. Since 1993, Dr. Whitton has written more than 100 reviews. He has also participated in more than 50 creative/dramatic performances since 1977. He has directed four performing arts programs. Who's Who Among Students

Michael Aday

Master of Business Administration

Michael is a member of Pinnacle Honor Society, College of Commerce and Business Administration. Michael selected JSU because it offered the correct combination of academic and administrative interest. His advice to a new JSU student is to treasure the education experience while making every effort to do well in both academic and extracurricular activities.

Flora H. Alexander

Agency Counseling

Flora is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority Inc., Pinnacle Honor Society, and All-American Scholars Honor Society. She came to JSU to obtain a higher education and to enjoy the friendliest campus in the South. Flora's greatest memory at JSU is the confidence and caring professors instilled in her to believe in herself. Her future plans are to use her master's degree in counseling to help make a difference in someone's life.

Christopher Law Betzler

Computer Science

Christopher is the Vice President of Sigma Nu, Treasurer of Order of Omega, Chanticleer Staff Writer, Sigma Nu recorder, and VP Judicial of IFC.. He is also a member of the Computer Science Club. Christopher came to JSU on a Faculty Scholarship. His future plans are to head West and look for a job. His advice to a new JSU student is to be active in the campus community, try new things, and above all, Go Greek!

in American Universities and Colleges

Lisa Marie Bowman

Business Management

Lisa is a member of Beta Gamma Sigma, Omicron Delta Kappa, Omicron Delta Epsilon, Society of the Advancement of Management, and Phi Beta Lambda. She came to JSU so she could live at home and get the degree she wanted. Her future plans are to get an office job, hopefully in a human resources department. Her advice to a new JSU student is to study hard, do your best, and enjoy each day of your life.

Stephen Ronald Douglas Bo Brackett

Delta Zeta

Delta Zeta is currently the largest international social sorority with 170 college chapters and over 250 alumnae chapters across the United States, Canada, and the United Kingdom. For over 25 years the Lambda Gamma Chapter of Delta Zeta Sorority at JSU has brought women closer together in friendship through scholarship, service, and commitment to our founder's ideals. Our chapter is active on campus as well as in the community and strives to help others with our commitment to our philanthropy, which supports national organizations and local projects designated for speech and hearing assistance and aid. Included are Gallaudet University, the House Ear Institute and the Better Hearing Institute.

Zeta Phi Beta

Conceived and inspired by the brotherhood of Phi Beta Sigma, Zeta Phi Beta emerged as the sisters to the men, who are Enriched by Culture and Obligated by Service. With sisterhood as the building blocks of their foundation Zeta called young African-American women together who exemplified finer womanhood.

Conceptualized and actualized by the "Five Perls," Zetas polished their scholarship until its luster illuminated the environment. Committed to service, they lifted humanity to greater horizons. Enhanced by sisterly love, they encouraged each other to reach new horizons while assisting others. Zetas are the quintessence of womanhood.

From the shores of North America, Zeta has spread her wings to include the continents of Africa, Europe, Asia, and the Caribbean. Zeta Phi Beta has soared to unique elevation in Black Greekdom.

Zeta women are endowed with beauty and patience, fortified with dedication, solidified with loyalty, and propelled by academic excellence. The Zeta woman possesses the tenacity to surpass inurmountable obstacles and to perform feats unimaginable to lesser women. The ladies of royal blue and white are the quintessence of womanhood.

Alpha Tau Omega

In the 132 years since its founding at the Virginia Military Institute in 1865, Alpha Tau Omega has achieved a position of eminence among American Greek-letter organizations. ATO's all over the world can take justifiable pride in their fraternity and what it has accomplished. Along with the fraternity's accomplishments, many of the alumni have gone on to prominent figures in the United States and world. The Eta Theta Chapter of ATO was founded at Jacksonville State on March 22, 1969. The fraternity's colors are sky blue and gold. The flower of Alpha Tau Omega is the White Tea Rose and their mascot is the Viking.

He then attended Louisiana State Tech where he was the all conference catcher. He began his coaching career at MSU and then went on to UAB and later back to MSU. This is his first season at Jacksonville and he is already proving to be an outstanding coach.

Organizations...

One of the best things JSU has to offer its students is the endless opportunity to get involved in more than 100 organizations. Each organization differs from the rest in its own special way to accommodate a wide range of student interests. Whether it's an honor society, a religious group, an athletic group, a professional club or a special interest club, there is a campus organization that's just right for you! Let's take a closer look....

"I like meeting people and it keeps me busy. Being involved is cool too."

-Jordan Brewer Communication Major

"I am learning new leadership skills which I will need for my future career, and I am making wonderful memories with people in my organizations."

-Angela Estes

What do you like most about being in a campus organization?

"Being involved in organizations on campus has improved my opportunities elsewhere."

Habitat For Humanity

This year Habitat for Humanity started a JSU chapter with the help of Calhoun County affiliate Dana VanEkris and faculty adviser Kim Weatherford. The chapter is off to a great start, holding many fundraisers such as the inaugural Hoops for Habitat -- Greeks vs. Faculty Game. The organization also held Saturday workdays where many students could build houses in Jacksonville. Several members even gave up their Spring Break to build houses in Valdosta, Georgia, as part of a national Collegiate Challenge project.

These students were eager to begin the Collegaite Challenge in Georgia.

Marching Southerners 2001-2002

As JSU's oldest tradition, the Marching Southerners have brought a special sense of pride to the school for years. With approximately 300 members each year, the Southerners consist of a magnificent group of instrumentalists, an award-winning percussion line, an eye-catching color guard, and the outstanding Marching Ballerinas.

This year they continued their tradition as they performed the most amazing show ever -- "2001: A Southerners Odyssey," which included the tunes Sand, Sea, and Space. They once again received the honor of being the exhibition band at the Bands of America regional finals in Atlanta's Georgia Dome as well as several other band competitions and festivals in Alabama and Georgia. And what game day would be complete without the Marching Southerners raising the sprits of the Gamecock fans in the stands of Paul Snow Stadium.

2001-2002 JSU Ballerinas

Above: The 2001-2002 Ballerinas get together for a group shot at a home football game.

For decades the Ballerinas have entertained crowds with their well-known traditional routines as a precision kickline patterned after the Radio City Rockets. However, for the past few years they have added a twist to their tradition while making new history. They still love performing to the classic Quilting Party in their red and white outfits, but they also enjoy the modern dance routines they perform in their new flashy uniforms. With the best of both styles, the Ballerinas share a special bond making it an unforgettable experience!

These Ballerinas have made friendships that will last forever.

Peer Counselors

The 2001 Peer Counselors were amazing. They spent all their summer running freshman orientation and making sure that the new students at JSU felt comfortable. The Peer Counselors are a group of students with at least 24 hours completed at JSU. Also, among this group is a group of faculty advisors. The group held a safari party so that new students and peer counselors could mingle in a relaxed atmosphere.

During a long training week the peer counselors rehearse many hours on the opening session.

JSU AMBASSADORS

Since becoming a new organization on campus in the year 2000, the JSU Ambassadors have made a large impact on the recruitment of new students here to Jacksonville State. They not only helped recruit new students but they also helped President Meehan at many functions for the university. They visited high schools to talk about JSU and what the university has to offer. They are a selected group of individuals who have a love for JSU and a desire to meet new people.

They enjoy a year full of singing and dancing as they perform for various campus and civic organizations including the Miss JSU Scholarship pageant, the Calhoun County Youth Leadership Day, and the annual Christmas Show at the Quintard Mall in Anniston. They conduct concerts throughout the year and conclude in May with an annual tour in which they travel to many high schools in Alabama and Georgia to recruit new students to JSU.

WLJS Radio

92-J

WLJS, "92J," is the campus radio station of Jacksonville State University. The station is owned by the JSU Board of Trustees and the day-to-day operations are run by students. 92J has a variety format ranging from different genres of Rock to Rap, New Age to Latin, and Electronic to Christian music, with National Public Radio news programming in the mornings. The station brings together students with different majors, and musical tastes which is why 92J promises "something for everyone." -Jordan Brewer

THE CHANTICLEER

The Chanticleer is the campus newspaper of Jacksonville State University. It is a student ran newspaper that keeps students informed on issues concerning the campus. It features campus news, world news, feature stories, sports, clubs, organizations, and the 92J Concert Calender. The Chanticleer is distributed throughout campus with around 5,000 copies in circulation. It is about a 16 page paper. Itis made up of a paid and volunteer staff.

Above: A few members of Freshman Forum discuss new ideas and enjoy each others friendship.

Since it was founded in 1993, Freshman Forum has focused on three ideals: leadership, excellence, and involvement. Without any hesitation, the 2001-2002 Freshman Forum members have lived up to those ideals and even exceeded the expectations of the organization. Throughout the year they conducted three projects to contribute their part in community service. At Halloween they made "goodie bags" and visited the residents of the Jacksonville Wessex House. They also conducted two separate food drives to benefit the Salvation Army, one at Thanksgiving and one during the Spring semester. In all, they were able to donate over 400 food items for local families. Freshman forum also successfully sponsored the first annual "Cock and Rock"....a mixer for all JSU freshman. Perhaps their greatest success this year came in their goal to help recruit students to JSU! They developed the INSPIRE program for high school students which focused on involvement, transition, and leadership skills form high school to college to make the university experience more enjoyable. They presented the program to the Youth Leadership of Calhoun County reaching approximately 400 students.

Society of Professional Journalism

The JSU chapter of SPJ hosted a variety of media professionals such as CNN anchor (and JSU alumna) Catherine Callaway and British journalist Godfrey Hodgson. The club also participated in the first JSU Communication Week. SPJ members who are planning careers in the media were able to get a glimpse of what their futures might hold.

The sponsors for SPJ were Mike Stedham and Lloyd Dobyns.

Attracting people

Students come to JSU for a variety of reasons. Some come here because it is close to home and some come because it is affordable. On these pages, three students tell why they chose Jacksonville State University.

I came to Jacksonville because of its reputation with my major, elementary education.

Jacksonville State University offers great graduate programs in all fields of study. I'm very glad to have had the opportunity to both graduate from JSU and stay to pursue my master's degree.

In some aspects, being a graduate student is much different than being an undergraduate. Most of the classes are scheduled at night to allow students to continue with their career goals. Also, much of a graduate student's education takes place not only in the classroom, but working independently on projects and research. Most of all, it is different in that you meet people who are in all stages of their career development, which provides a learning experience all of its own.

Although graduate school at JSU has its differences, it resembles the undergraduate program in that the faculty and staff are still very helpful and work one-on-one with the students to ensure academic success. Also, the classes are so small that you are able to meet other people who make classes that much more rewarding.

Supplemental Learning Services

Supplemental Learning Services and ACE technology provides services to faculty and students alike. Services provided are individual tutoring, study groups, and supplemental instruction attached to classes in the general education course work in order to make students more successful in college. The goal of supplemental learning services is to fill the gap between class and homework for students, in addition to assisting faculty with innovative techniques to utilize within the classroom.

Ann L. Poe is the coordinator for Supplemental Services

Ann Poe works very hard and wants the students at JSU to utilize the wonderful things that Supplemental Learning Services has to offer.

Here Ann Poe is overseeing a few students that are being tutored by other students.

The students receive one-on-one help in any area they may be lacking in.

David and Paulette Zeigler

The 500 copies of the Mimosa (v.57) were printed by Jostens in Clarksville, TN. The company representatives were David and Paulette Zeigler. Thank you for all of your help. Type, layout and design was done on a Macintosh using Adobe Pagemaker 6.5. The cover was designed to go along with the theme "Take a Closer Look". This theme was chosen get a closer look into JSU.
